Brief Historical Overview:

The Greenbrier is a National Historic Landmark that has been welcoming guests from around the world since 1778. The natural mineral springs that drew our first guests more than 240 years ago continue to lure visitors to our luxurious 11,000-acre playground today. With a guest list that includes 27 of our country's presidents, America's Resort has long been a favorite destination of royalty, celebrities and business leaders. In the early 1800s, a cottage community grew into a very fashionable place to gather. The Springhouse (still standing today) opened in 1835. The first hotel on the property opened in 1858. The central section of the current hotel structure opened in 1913. The Greenbrier served as a WWII military hospital that admitted 24,148 patients. At the height of the Cold War a top-secret U.S. government relocation facility for Congress was built on property, securing The Greenbrier's place in history.

The Presidential Suite & The Windsor Club:

The Greenbrier has taken "club level" to extraordinary new heights. The Windsor Club is an impressive collection of premier accommodations, including the most outstanding service and amenities in our history. This club is not for everyone. An entire wing of The Greenbrier is reserved solely for the enjoyment of our most selective guests. The Presidential Suite, the most spacious and luxurious of all The Greenbrier suites, is much like a home within The Windsor Club. The Presidential Suite has seven bedrooms occupying two floors and is entered through a private foyer. The Suite lived up to its name when President Dwight D. Eisenhower held the North American Summit Conference there in 1956. In addition, it has been the residence of the Duke and Duchess of Windsor, Prince Ranier and Princess Grace of Monaco and many other notables of society.

Meetings & Events

The Greenbrier has hosted groups from eight to thousands of guests, including cherished family reunions, industry conferences and executive retreats for many years. With more than 200,000 square-feet of flexible meeting and event space — including our 16,000 square-foot Colonial Hall, 40 breakout rooms, and a 16,500 square-foot exhibit hall — nothing is impossible at The Greenbrier. Our Sales and Event Services teams are with our clients from beginning to end, providing world-class service and amenities to every meeting, event and special occasion.

Services include signature sulphur soaks, massages, facials, hydrotherapy treatments, body fusions, manicures, pedicures, spray tanning, waxing and more.

The Greenbrier Bunker:

In the 1950s, the United States government constructed a top-secret underground bunker beneath the West Virginia Wing of The Greenbrier resort to house Congress in the event of an attack on Washington D.C. Known as Project Greek Island, the space remained a secret from the public until 1992, when the program was exposed by a U.S. newspaper. The declassified bunker is now a must-see experience that takes guests behind the scenes on a 90-minute walking tour through a fascinating period in the resort's (and the nation's) history. Group tours are offered daily and private tours are available upon request.
