Fishing opportunities abound at The Greenbrier. Howard's Creek is a spectacular ribbon of water that flows right through the heart of the resort. Let our experienced Greenbrier fishing guides take you on a trip through The Greenbrier property, where you can enjoy fly fishing for catch and release trophy trout or smallmouth bass. Anglers of all levels can take pleasure in the views that the Allegheny Mountains provide. If fly fishing is not your angle, then there are several lakes on the property that hold bass, carp, and catfish, along with various panfish.

Fishing is not just limited to the resort. There are numerous local streams in the area where our guides can take you, as well. They offer the opportunity for more trout and bass fishing, or for a more experienced angler to catch a native trout in one of our backcountry streams.

For a more adventurous take on fishing, join us on the river! Our premium scenic float trips are specifically designed for fishing or outdoor enthusiasts. Our professional guides provide access to river sections that are remote and not pressured by regular anglers.

What does this mean for your trip? Many of our local rivers and waterways have sections that require special equipment and knowledge to navigate the various shoals and rapids. This exclusive gateway to miles of backcountry waters cut deep into the Appalachian Mountains provides the angler with a truly amazing fishing experience. Fly fishing and conventional gear are provided.

Whatever your preferred species to fish - from trout to the fish of 10,000 casts, the muskellunge - you'll find it here. If you are not sure what fish you're hoping to find, one of our guides can help. Both wading trips and float fishing trips are offered, ranging from a 1-hour fly fishing casting clinic to a full 6-hour day. Whatever your discipline, be it fly fishing or spin casting, The Greenbrier has a trip and species of fish to meet your needs.

■ Trap Shooting: Trap shooting has been a sport since the late 18th century, when live game birds were used. Live birds were used until the 1860s, when glass balls were used to replace the shooting of live birds. The first clay target was invented in 1880 by Fred Kimble. The targets were made of coal-tar, pitch and other components.

Today, trap shooting consists of throwing 25 single target away from the shooter. There are five shooting stations arrayed in an arc located 16 yards behind the trap house. A squad of up to five shooters will shoot in rotation at each of the five different stations. The trap machine oscillates left to right within a 54 degree arc (up to 27 degrees right and left of center); and at least a 34 degree arc (up to 17 degrees right and left of center); and the shooter does not know the angle of the target. This activity is perfect for novice, intermediate and advanced shooters.

■ Shooting Instruction: Private shooting instruction is available from our team of certified shooting instructors. Our instructors have been certified with the British School of Shooting or through the National Sporting Clay's Association. Whether you are a novice, intermediate or an experienced shooter, professional instruction is a great way to gain experience on the basic fundamentals of shooting and shooting techniques. The Greenbrier also offers youth shooting instruction for 13 to 15 years of age.

CANCELLATION POLICY: Reservations must be canceled at least 24 hours before the time of the activity. A non-cancellation fee will be charged to those who do not follow this procedure.

■ Skeet Shooting: Skeet shooting was invented in 1920 by Charles Davis and William H. Foster of Andover, Massachusetts. Davis and Foster created a shooting game which they called "shooting around the clock." The original game was in the form of a circle with a radius of 25 yards and with the circumference marked off like the face of a clock. The trap house was set at the 12-o'clock position. Skeet shooting today consists of two houses, one being the High House and the other being the Low House. The shooting stations follow a semi circle shape and consist of eight stations. A round of Skeet is 25 targets in a set sequence of singles and simultaneous doubles. This activity is best for intermediate and advanced shooters.

■ Sporting Clays: Sporting clays is a form of clay pigeon shooting that simulates the sport of live bird hunting. During the 19th century, the gentleman's sport of live bird shooting was a very popular pastime and was considered high fashion and great entertainment. The Greenbrier's sporting clays course located on Kate's Mountain weaves a half-mile through a mix of hardwoods and towering pines. The course was designed by Justin Jones and John Higgins of the British School of Shooting in 2001. The course presents the shooter with 10 different shooting stations and each has two shooting stands. The mountainous topography on Kate's Mountain provides a multitude of target presentations, which include fast flying grouse, driven pheasant, bolting rabbits and springing teal. Sporting clays are a great activity for all skill levels from the first time novice to the master shot.
