The Greenbrier is

Going Gold

The iconic white façade that marks the Front Entrance of The Greenbrier turns gold for this month to support Childhood Cancer Awareness Month. America's Resort is lighting up its grand entrance every night to bring support and awareness to the worthy cause.

In the U.S. alone, nearly 16,000 children under the age of 21 are diagnosed with cancer every year, and approximately a quarter of them don't survive.

The patient in these situations isn't the only one who suffers. A cancer diagnosis turns the lives of friends and family members upside down, and the emotions, as well as the expense, of the journey through treatment can take a major toll.

"The pain that these families experience must be incredible," said Dr. Jill Justice, President, The Greenbrier. "We have to do all we can to find a way to help the cause, so if The Greenbrier can help bring some attention to the issue, we're thrilled to be able to do so."

The objective of Childhood Cancer Awareness Month is to put a spotlight on the types of cancer that largely affect children and to help raise funds for research and family support.

"The National Cancer Institute only allots 3.8 percent of its budget for research for childhood cancer," said Kelly Wymer, the co-founder of West Virginia Kids Cancer Crusaders. Her daughter, Ali, is a cancer survivor. "These kids get so little. People don't know that, so we're trying to spread the word."

Turning The Greenbrier gold serves as a reminder to guests and the nearly 2,000 Team Members at The Greenbrier that childhood cancer is a serious issue that impacts so many families throughout West Virginia and beyond.

"It's hard for a lot of people to face," said Wymer.

"People just don't want to look at kids with bald heads. It's too hard. So we have to raise awareness. Without that, we will never find a cure."

One Healthy Partnership.

The Greenbrier is excited to announce a new partnership between The Greenbrier Clinic and WVU Medicine that brings many of the brightest medical minds and top technology in West Virginia together at America's Resort, an institution built on healing from its beginnings more than 250 years ago.

The partnership with a nationally recognized academic medical center and medical school, ranked 6th in the nation by Vizient, will allow the physicians at The Greenbrier Clinic, which has been providing a premier executive physical program since 1948, to refer patients to some of the top experts in specific fields for extended treatment, enhancing the service provided to those executive physical patients.

New services are also offered on a periodic basis to the executive patients at The Greenbrier Clinic, including Neurology, Rheumatology, Hematology/Oncology and expanded Gastroenterology.

In addition, The Greenbrier Clinic has converted its information system to the EPIC system, used by WVU Medicine and top academic medical centers throughout the country, allowing for a more seamless sharing of information.

WVU Medicine became the official sports medicine provider for The Greenbrier earlier this year, providing training services for events such as the Houston Texans Training Camp, The Greenbrier Classic and The Greenbrier Champions Tennis Classic.
